Tom Yawkey Wildlife Center Tour Wednesday, May 21, 2025

Tom Yawkey, longtime owner of the Boston Red Sox, was also one of the largest land donors to the state of South Carolina. Yawkey's gift of 20,000 acres of land, one of the largest donations to wildlife conservation in United States history, was the foundation for the Tom Yawkey Wildlife Center.

After inheriting property along the Georgetown County shoreline in 1925, Tom and his wife Jean spent winters in South Carolina for the community and its wildlife.

The Tom Yawkey Wildlife Center now includes more than 24,000 acres of marshes, wetlands, forests and beaches. It is home to hundreds of species of wildlife and is a habitat for migratory birds, eagles, and alligators and other endangered species.

The beaches are considered excellent nesting locations for the threatened loggerhead sea turtle. Join us for a day tour of this pristine preserved land and all the wildlife that resides there.
